

The Heritage Foundation invites you to a Book Event

Smoking Them Out

The Theft of the Environment and How to Take It Back

featuring author Greg Walcher

While many books assess the history of the environmental movement and offer perspectives of what has gone right or wrong since its inception around 1970, there is no doubt that the issue has become less about science and practical conservation as it has become more highly polarized and politicized. Property rights, the Endangered Species Act, forest management, energy, natural resource development production and other critical issues have been reduced to political footballs, while responsible efforts stall and Americans grieve dying forests and record gasoline prices.

In Smoking Them Out, Greg Walcher, President of the Natural Resources Group and an American leader in natural resource policy, offers a fresh approach. A mountain of entangling regulations have inflicted unintended consequences upon “stewards of the land” – farmers, ranchers, and landowners. Walcher presents a way out of this wilderness. He argues the solution to many of our environmental problems is simple, measurable, and sustainable both economically and from a conservation standpoint.

Wednesday, October 16, 2013 at 12:00 p.m.

Hosted by

Becky Norton Dunlop

Vice President, External Relations, The Heritage Foundation

RSVP online at heritage.org/Events/ | or call (202) 675-1752

Terms and conditions of attendance are posted at heritage.org/Events/terms.cfm

All events may be viewed live at heritage.org

News media inquiries, call (202) 675-1761

The Heritage Foundation's Lehrman Auditorium

~ Books will be available for purchase and to be signed by the Author. ~

214 Massachusetts Avenue, NE | Washington, DC 20002 | (202) 546-4400