Gina -- I think we need to be consistent.

I've copied David McIntosh, who may also have thoughts as to the advisability of this.

Seth

I would like to talk about how best to respond to this email. I think we have some strong arguments that need to be raised. Let's talk.

Great to talk with you at the USCAP reception in Copenhagen. I also appreciated your comments at the Pew Center side-event about the historic nature of the endangerment finding.

I've been telling my editors for months that the coming greenhouse gas rules are a really big deal and that we have to do a story—and they’ve finally agreed. Of course, they’ve also asked for the story for the next issue, which means delivering it on Tuesday.

So I’m hoping there might be a chance, please, to chat with you more about this. In talking to companies, law firms, and enviros, it seems like there are a whole host of interesting questions. Here are some issues that people have raised (all of which I’m sure you’ve heard many times before):

-- Companies like Dow are arguing that EPA doesn’t have to finalize the tailpipe rule (I don’t get this, given the Supreme Court case and the endangerment finding). Or, even if it comes out and triggers the ‘prevention of significant deterioration’ provisions for stationary sources, EPA could decide that CO₂ doesn’t have to be included as a pollutant. “We’re told that legally EPA has the discretion to not do the tailpipe rule, and, even if it does, it doesn’t have to include CO₂,” says Dow’s Keith Belton. (The chemical industry also wants the threshold to be raised to 50,000 tons per year).

-- Lawyers question whether you’ll get away with the tailoring rule. They say that changing the PSD permit trigger from 250 tons to 25,000 tons involves invoking two doctrines (i.e. absurd results if implemented, and administrative necessity) that “are pretty tough arguments to make,” says Kyle Danish at Van Ness Feldman: “The concern is that it will unravel on them.” On the other hand, David Bookbinder at the Sierra Club says it will be very hard for opponents to get standing to challenge the tailoring rule.

-- If it all does go forward, companies are painting a picture of a “bureaucratic nightmare,” saying that “all of a sudden we are talking about the need for state regulators to make hundreds and hundreds of individual decisions about what constitutes ‘best available control technology’ – and those decisions have to be approved by EPA.”

Plus, what will be allowed as BACT? switching a coal plant to natural gas? boosting efficiency? Utilities say that requiring carbon capture could be easily challenged, since it doesn’t meet the definition of commercially available. So what guidelines will EPA be offering on BACT decisions?

I’m also told that several key dates will be coming up as EPA sets actual numerical emissions targets for cement (June 6), nitric acid (November 15), and the Big One, coal-fired powerplants, March 15, 2011?

-- EPA is treading into dangerous political waters, some say. Opponents will charge that greenhouse gas regulation will be a job-killer and get their allies in Congress (e.g. Senator Murkowski) to fight back. “EPA has to be careful,” one industry lobbyist told me: “If they want to use this as a stick to get Congress to act on climate legislation, they could easily go too far, and cause a backlash, with Congress keeping EPA from spending money on this.”

For their part, enviros hope that the threat of EPA regulation will be what finally gets legislation over the hump (as in this off-the-record comment: “EPA is dipping its toe in with cement and nitric acid, and then on March 15, 2011, comes the big one, the Big Bang. I want coal to see what’s coming, because then we will negotiate with them for legislation. This is the goal: By Nov 2010, I want those stupid bastards to understand what’s going to hit them on March 2011.”

On the other hand, as you said in Copenhagen, EPA regulation doesn’t have to be seen as a second choice. Maybe it is a good way to go?
-- There’s a suggestion that EPA’s recent Cash Creek decision (denial of a permit for an IGCC plant on the grounds that natural gas as a fuel was not considered in the BACT analysis) is sending strong signal to industry that EPA will be thinking of fuel-switching as a BACT for CO₂ as well as for other pollutants. Plausible?

Whew. A lot of this gets down in the weeds, so I’d like to step back and also ask just how important all of this will be…

Might it be possible to talk about this by early next week?

Many thanks for any help—and Happy New Year!

best regards,
john

Hi everyone.

In discussing with LPJ the issue I raised in my separate email about doing key outreach tomorrow morning before the announcement, she has indicated she would like to personally call the heads of Sierra and NRDC, as well as Jessy Tolkan, and maybe Env America..

Heidi -- I know she has a full morning, but is there any way these calls can be arranged sometime before noon and will you take the lead in arranging them? They are likely to be short and she can certainly do them while en route someplace.

This has crossed our paths. The company received an Air Permit and a Title V operating permit from the Louisiana Department of Environmental Quality. Since their issuance of the permits, we have received a Title V petition from the Sierra Club, local citizens and the Gulf Coast Environmental Labor Coalition a few weeks ago. Region 6 also had considerable comments on the permit ourselves when it was at notice.

If you have further questions, our permitting point of contact is Jeff Robinson, Chief, Air Permitting Section or give me a call or email.

Hi Betsaida

I’ve got a question for you: I am trying to see where the EPA Clean Air and Clean Water review of the proposed LNG Export facility in Sabine Pass stands. My understanding is that, in addition to the environmental assessment that FERC is wrapping up, EPA has those two Act assessments of the terminal to finish up as well. That may not be your strict bailiwick – but could you point me towards the best people (or even a place in the public record)?

Muchas gracias

Quick question -- what was the action Steve mentioned at the OAR staff meeting yesterday that was going to slip a month (from 8/31 to end of Sept.) Per agreement with the Sierra Club? (My notes are indecipherable.)

Thanks,

Initial info. I've received is that the burn(s) did happen though it/they were of short duration. Not clear about how many (if more than one) actually took place. Did hear that it/they did not come about very easily.

R6 is working on getting more definitive details from the folks close to the in-situ burn site as well as checking on the data of the monitoring/sampling. Our ASPECT aircraft personnel is also pulling the data from their equipment. Results will likely not be available until tomorrow.

The aircraft is refueling at the Huama airfield in La. The data from the first flight is being transferred into the data FTP site. Reach back data analyses support personnel are pulling, processing and reviewing the data sets. The in-situ test burn has not yet occurred but the Coast Guard contacts indicate it is still planned for this afternoon. The flight crew is preparing to acquire a second set of data once the in-situ test burn is initiated. The test burn is anticipated to take approximately an hour to complete. Flight time to the Deepwater Horizon well area from Houma is approximately one hour. With sufficient forewarning the crew is expected to be able to launch in time to collect data during the test burn.

Subject: Gulf Coast Air Monitoring to Protect Health of Communities

Dear Administrator Jackson,

Thank you for your ongoing commitment to protecting the people and resources of the Gulf Coast from environmental hazards, including those associated with the BP oil disaster. The attached letter outlines our continuing concerns about gaps in the air quality monitoring being conducted in the Gulf Coast. As evidenced by the response of 25, mostly local, organizations who signed this letter, this concern is shared by communities throughout the Gulf Region. As scientists, we appreciate the hard work of EPA staff to collect information and communicate it to the public and welcome further conversations to discuss the recommendations we outline in this letter. Thank you for your commitment to air quality monitoring in the Gulf Coast and we look forward to continuing to work with you to ensure the protection of all communities.

Sincerely,

09:00 AM-10:00 AM  Remarks at the Congressional Livable Communities Task Force Meeting

The LCTF was re-started by Congressman Blumenauer in Fall of 2009. It now has 29 Members, with heavy member and staff participation in the near-weekly briefings our office organizes.

The objective of the Task Force is to identify the ways in which the federal government can affect community livability and improve Americans’ quality of life. This includes reducing the nation’s dependence on oil, protecting the environment, improving public health and investing in housing and transportation projects that create jobs and give people more commuting choices.

The purpose of the meeting is to facilitate a dialogue between the Administrator and members of the LCTF on what EPA is doing for the livable communities agenda, and how Congress can help advance those goals.

Format:

Information conversation with a bit of Q&A from Members.

09:00 AM-10:00 AM  Remarks at the Congressional Livable Communities Task Force Meeting
Duration: 45 minutes - 1 hr
Attendees: 15-20 members
Format:
-Brief introduction of LPJ by Blumenauer
-Informal roundtable discussion and Q&A from members
Staff:
Arvin Ganesan (OCIR)

The LCTF was re-started by Congressman Blumenauer in Fall of 2009. It now has 29 Members, with heavy member and staff participation in the near-weekly briefings our office organizes.

The objective of the Task Force is to identify the ways in which the federal government can affect community livability and improve Americans' quality of life. This includes reducing the nation’s dependence on oil, protecting the environment, improving public health and investing in housing and transportation projects that create jobs and give people more commuting choices.

The purpose of the meeting is to facilitate a dialogue between the Administrator and members of the LCTF on what EPA is doing for the livable communities agenda, and how Congress can help advance those goals.

09:00 AM-10:00 AM Remarks at the Congressional Livable Communities Task Force Meeting

Duration: 45 minutes - 1 hr
Attendees: 15-20 members

Format:
-Brief introduction of LPJ by Blumenauer
-Informal roundtable discussion and Q&A from members

Staff:
Arvin Ganesan (OCIR)

The LCTF was re-started by Congressman Blumenauer in Fall of 2009. It now has 29 Members, with heavy member and staff participation in the near-weekly briefings our office organizes.

The objective of the Task Force is to identify the ways in which the federal government can affect community livability and improve Americans’ quality of life. This includes reducing the nation's dependence on oil, protecting the environment, improving public health and investing in housing and transportation projects that create jobs and give people more commuting choices.

The purpose of the meeting is to facilitate a dialogue between the Administrator and members of the LCTF on what EPA is doing for the livable communities agenda, and how Congress can help advance those goals.

Darrel,

Just received this from the AO scheduling office. FYI, we never saw the original April 3rd request referenced below.

After quickly discussing with Jeff, we wanted to forward along to you, as this meeting appears to be OAR issue-focused. We haven't had a chance to discuss with Karin and JoAnn yet, but wanted to send to you in order to get OAR's feedback ASAP.

Thanks in advance for your quick help on this!
~Marissa
This is rather time-sensitive, so I thought you should see it straightaway. Pls consult with JoAnn and advise ASAP.

Regarding: Meeting with Administrator Jackson for April 17, 2012

By email

Dear Administrator Jackson:

I represent the Moapa Band of Paiutes, a federally recognized Tribe in Moapa,
Nevada, and the Sierra Club, the nation's largest and most effective grassroots environmental organization, in matters relating to the Reid Gardner coal fired power plant and its manifold edifices of coal ash waste.

Here, I write on behalf of William Anderson, Chairman of the Tribal Business Council, and Bill Corcoran, Western Regional Campaign Director for the Beyond Coal Campaign of the Sierra Club.

On April 3, 2012, I conveyed to you a letter from the Tribe that, among other things, strongly criticized a new draft rule on BART for Reid Gardner issued by Region 9 (but not yet published in the Federal Register). The letter also invited you to the Reservation to discuss this matter and to learn how this facility is severely my client's very way of life. [See below and attached.] We have not yet heard back from you on this, and time is of the essence. As noted, this is a critical issue for the Tribe, a matter of environmental injustice that, if not corrected, will yield substantial and avoidable injury to the people.

We recently secured a meeting to discuss these issues with Senate Majority Leader Reid, namely for the afternoon of Tuesday, April 17, 2012, in the Capitol.

Though it is very short notice, may we now request to meet with you that day? Anytime prior to 2:45pm on 4/17 would work for us. After 5pm might also work, if necessary.

Thank you very much for your consideration of this request. I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely yours,
Dan Galpern

Dear Administrator Jackson,

I write on behalf of the Moapa Band of Paiutes.

Please consider the attached letter from the Tribe’s Chairman, William Anderson. It is with respect to a proposal signed yesterday by Region 9 of EPA with respect to the Best Available Retrofit Technology (BART) determination for Reid Gardner, a coal-fired power plant whose toxic pollution impairs the very way of life of my clients.

The Tribe fervently seeks your direct intervention in this matter.

Thank you very much for your consideration. Please let me know if I can be of assistance to you with respect to your Agency's pending final decision.

Sincerely yours,

Gina and Janet:

As I think you both know, Oregon DEQ has been engaged in a rule-making regarding the future of the Boardman power plant. They are making progress on finalizing a rule-making that would have PG&E close the plant no later than 2020. Rick Albright and his staff have been working closely with Oregon DEQ on this and it is set for final action in front of the Oregon Environmental Quality Commission next week. An article describing where things are at in the process can be found at the following link: http://www.oregonlive.com/environment/index.ssf/2010/12/oregon_regulators_endorse_port.html.

Glad you are doing a follow up call!

In the future please shoot me a heads up when it initially goes on the schedule. I have copied Kate Gage on this e mail she is tracking lists. I think we should reach out to a few more groups-

Kate can you pull all the big local and national NGO's from the list and send to Lee?

Shira,

OAR (DAA McCabe) is leading a call with our NGO stakeholders tomorrow, Tuesday, May 25, at 1pm. This is in follow-up to our meeting held last week at the direction of the Administrator.

Please advise if there are cross-cutting issues or items that we need to know.

We've expanded our list of NGOs in response to feedback from our first call. The invitees include:

Hi Ellen,

Sorry to take so long, but trying to nail down our meeting with the Administrator on May 20th at 4 PM to discuss Ozone NAAQS. Gina will be able to join us. It's at 4 PM, so if she is available for a meeting at 4:45 with them, we can be there. Below are the key folks I'm working with who are coming to the 20th meeting and they MAY also be able to stay to meet with Gina on power plants if that works for her. Several will also be bringing a volunteer leader or other key staff (my CEO is joining me), but these are the folks to contact. I don't have full list of attendees yet. My CEO, Charles Connor, will also be there with me.

If you think this is likely, I can ask them to save time for the second meeting as well.

Cindy Pellegrini, Assistant Director of Federal Affairs, American Academy of Pediatricians, c.pellegrini@aap.org
Gary Ewart, American Thoracic Society, g.ewart@thoracic.org
Bill Rom, MD, Volunteer, American Thoracic Society (through Gary)
Donald Hoppert, Director of Government Relations, American Public Health Association, donald.hoppert@apha.org
Susan K. Bishop, American Heart Association, susan.k.bishop@heart.org
Kristen Welker-Hood, ScD MSN RN, Director, Environment and Health Programs, Physicians for Social Responsibility, kwelker-hood@psr.org
Charlotte Collins, JD, Director of Public Policy and Advocacy, Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America, charlotte@aaafa.org

Bill McLinn, President and CEO of the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America, (through Charlotte)

I'm also reaching out to Debra Cohn, American Medical Association, Debra.Cohn@ama-assn.org. AMA has supported strengthening the ozone and PM standards in the past and she attended prior meeting with the previous Administrator.

Some of these folks have connections to others. These additional people are not likely to be able to attend a DC-meeting, but may be willing to add their voice in support. They are best reached through folks attending the meeting. The most connected person is Gary Ewart at ATS, who has gotten sign on to letters from the American Academy of Chest Physicians, the American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine, the American College of Preventative Medicine and others.

Thank you,
Janice

No, his message seemed more like a thank you for the voice mail message and an updated on where he is until next week so you know where they stand.

Thanks--I've taken care of the first three, and it doesn't sound like John Walke was expecting a call back.

(4) John Walke from NRDC at 202-489-4400 (cell) or on email. He is on vacation from Thursday, 2/14 - Tuesday, 2/19, but you can reach him via email or on his cell. Wants you to know he appreciated the voice mail from you and one from Gina after last week's meeting. NRDC and Sierra Club are in the process of setting up a meeting and then they would like to accept your invitation to come in together and meet with EPA.
Here is a copy of the calendars for the next two weeks.

Janet - Your current availability on Thursday and Friday is outlined below (and that is without skipping or cancelling any meetings). Let me know if I need to carve out more time. And is this the same set-up we had a couple of weeks ago when Peter T. joined you for 15 minute calls to individual organizations? Would you want someone to join you for the calls this time?

Thursday, 2/7
8:45am - 9:30am
10 - 10:30am
2:45 - 3:30pm
5 - 6:30pm

Friday, 2/8
11 - 11:30am
2:30 - 3pm

Nate - Would you or John have a list of the people Janet would want to talk to along with contact information so I can begin to set up the calls?

John, Nate--I wanted to bring you up to date on the latest with the SO2 120 day letters, if OAQPS hasn't already, and add a few tidbits that came up in the morning meeting with Gina today.

Is the webinar already scheduled? I'd like to have that on my calendar too, so I can at least go to the beginning of it.

John and Nate,

I have gone ahead and scheduled the block of time on Janet's calendar from 1:30 - 3:30pm. Once the start times for each call are confirmed with OAQPS and Ken, let me know and I can modify the block. At this time no conference rooms are available, so I have put this in Janet's office. How many people would you expect to attend here at HQ?

Emily

EPA Seeks Stay Of Drilling Air Rule Suits Pending Likely Policy Revisions

Posted: January 28, 2013

EPA says it will likely reconsider provisions in its landmark new source performance standards (NSPS) and air toxics rules for the oil and gas sector, and is asking a federal appeals court to halt industry and environmentalist lawsuits over the regulations until it has fully vetted the scope of its potential revisions to the emission rules.

Drilling industry groups are challenging the rules both through litigation and administrative petitions for reconsideration of the rules, seeking a slew of changes including softening storage tank control requirements; extending the rules' compliance deadlines; and other fixes. EPA is signaling it is likely to consider some of the changes sought by industry, though the agency did not respond to a request for comment on which changes might qualify.

Although EPA is not providing details on which issues it will reconsider, a source familiar with the lawsuits says that EPA intends to issue a reconsideration of the storage tank requirements in the air toxics rules this spring.

The agency outlined the reconsideration process in a Jan. 16 unopposed motion to hold in abeyance multiple suits filed in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit over its NSPS and national emission standards for hazardous air pollutants (NESHAP) for oil and gas drilling, and the motions also seeks to sever the consolidated lawsuits into separate cases for each set of rules because it anticipates changes to the NESHAP rules may take longer to resolve.

The lawsuits have been filed by environmental groups, including Environmental Defense Fund, Natural Resources Defense Council, Sierra Club, Clean Air Council and others Group Against Smog and Pollution. Other legal challenges to rules are from industry groups American Petroleum Institute, Texas Oil and Gas Association, Gas Processors Association, Independent Petroleum Association of America and its state affiliates, and others.

The lawsuits challenge EPA's rules issued in August revising its 1985 NSPS and 1999 NESHAP to address emissions from some sources not previously regulated by EPA. For example, the rule requires installation of reduced emissions completions -- a set of equipment and processes designed to capture volatile organic compounds and other emissions otherwise released during the completion phase at hydraulic fracturing wells.

EPA says in the Jan. 16 motion it anticipates granting reconsideration in several of the administrative petitions it received on the rules, though it remains unclear which revisions the agency is considering.

API in an Aug. 16 petition for reconsideration asked EPA to revise the rule to provide additional time to comply with control requirements for storage vessels and for flexibility in complying with restrictions on venting gas. API says the agency significantly underestimates the amount of storage tanks that would be affected by the rule.

“Specifically, we believe that EPA has inadvertently written some of the requirements in a manner that will cause widespread non-compliance with the rules,” Matt Todd, API's senior policy adviser, said in an Aug. 16 statement. “Additionally, because EPA has significantly underestimated the number of [storage] tanks affected by this rule, there will be significant impact on our ability continue operations unless the Agency modifies the rule language,” he said.

Sever Suits

In the Jan. 16 motion, EPA also asks the court to separate the lawsuits into separate actions, and to hold the suits on the NSPS in abeyance until Aug. 30, and the litigation over the NESHAP in abeyance until May 30, 2014.

The agency says in the motion that it anticipates signing a notice of proposed rulemaking to address certain issues underlying the NSPS by March 29, with final action by July 31. While EPA indicates it will address some of the NSPS reconsideration issues on an expedited basis, if it determines other issues also require reconsideration, an additional proposal would be submitted by Dec. 17, with a final rule by Nov. 25, 2014.

“In light of EPA’s anticipated grant of reconsideration on certain issues, and to provide it with time to evaluate others, EPA respectfully requests that the Court, upon severing the NSPS and NESHAP cases, hold the NSPS case in abeyance until August 30, 2013, and order the parties in that case to file a motion or motions to govern further proceedings on or prior to that date,” the agency says in the motion.

For the NESHAP, EPA says it has informed plaintiffs in the suits that it intends to sign a proposed rule on “at least one NESHAP issue on which it will grant reconsideration” anticipating that it will sign a notice of proposed rule by April 30, 2014, and final action by March 31, 2015. -- Bridget DiCosmo (bdicosmo@iwpnews.com This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. Nancy,

Thanks for your assistance. Let me know of any questions or concerns.

Thanks

Some of the topics of particular interest to the group include:

· Study on hydraulic fracturing and drinking water resources. Jeanne Briskin conducted a very helpful webinar on the progress report for Forum members on Monday, January 14th. The members look forward to continuing the dialogue with Jeanne and welcome future opportunities to provide input into the process.

· Oil & Gas NSPS. We’re very interested in the status of implementing the NSPS and EPA’s work to respond to various petitions and challenges.

· GHG Measurement and Inventories. We’re closely tracking the developments related to GHG estimates including the upcoming releases of the US GHG Inventory Report and the GHG Reporting Program (Subpart W) data.

· Interagency (EPA, DOE, DOI) Research Program. We would be interested in any updates on the program including progress on a draft research plan.

· Additional topics of interest: Outlook for EPA activity on GHG NSPS for existing power plants / other new source categories; status of SO2/NOx/Toxics regulations affecting coal-fired power plants including EPA & FERC coordination.
Here are one-pagers/talkers we prepared for Bob P recently on GHG reporting, MATS, the transport rule, the ozone NAAQS and the PM NAAQS. We'll get you something similar for the oil & gas NSPS, the EGU GHG NSPS, and the SO2 NAAQS on Monday. Hopefully, we'll hear from Bruce soon on the fracking TP inserts. Hope these help!

Hi John- This is pulled from what we gave to the Today Show last month. I don't think that we need to make any changes, but wanted to get you to have a second look.

Do you have edits to this? (part of what we gave Today Show)

Subject: Re: ACTION: Stateline.org Re: state radon grants DEADLINE: 3/26 COB
Hi,

SUMMARY: For Stateline.org, reporter is writing a story about the President’s proposed elimination of state radon grants in FY 2013. He’s been told that the EPA probably gets more positive health impact per dollar on that program than in any other, and that without those grants, most state radon programs will be forced to close. Does the EPA have any comment about those possible closures? And does the agency have any more general comments about the value of state radon grants over the past years?

Thus far he’s talked to the Radon program heads in Illinois (for the state and the American Lung Association, which is helping to carry out the program), the director of gov relations for the American Cancer Society in Iowa, a local radon mitigator, a couple of Iowa legislators, and he visited with a radon-induced lung cancer survivor after her testimony at yesterday’s House Appropriations committee meeting. From that, he got a couple of comments from House members.

Stateline is a nonpartisan, nonprofit news service of the Pew Center on the States. Since 1999, it has reported and analyzed trends in state policy.

DEADLINE: 3/26 COB

Thoughts? Ready to use our preexisting radon/budget statement?

EPA Appeals District Court Order Requiring Agency to Act on Ozone Plan Submittals

By Jessica Coomes

The Environmental Protection Agency has appealed a federal district court's order requiring the agency to take action on state implementation plan submittals from Kentucky and Tennessee for the 2008 ozone air quality standards (WildEarth Guardians v. Jackson, 9th Cir., No. 13-15220, 2/5/13).

EPA has said its obligation to approve or disapprove the plans became moot when Kentucky and Tennessee withdrew their plan submittals.

The U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California disagreed, and in a Dec. 7, 2012, order it said EPA must act on the two state's submittals by March 4 (WildEarth Guardians v. Jackson, N.D. Cal., No. 11-5651, order issued 12/7/12).

EPA is appealing the case to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. In a docketing statement Feb. 5, EPA said the principal issue that will be raised on appeal is “whether the withdrawal of an implementation plan by the submitting State moots EPA's obligation under the Clean Air Act to take action to approve or disapprove the plan.”

EPA Said Plans Withdrawn

EPA set the ozone national ambient air quality standards at 75 parts per billion in 2008 during the George W. Bush administration. When President Obama took office, the agency announced it would reconsider the standards, which hindered the implementation process. State implementation plans were due March 12, 2011, which fell during the reconsideration process.

EPA in September 2011 then announced it would drop the reconsideration and began the process of implementing standards.

In the underlying district court case, Judge Yvonne Gonzalez Rogers on Oct. 17, 2012, ordered EPA to act on ozone implementation plans for several states by Jan. 4.

To meet the Jan. 4 deadline, EPA issued a final rule, which was published Jan. 15, finding that 28 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico have not submitted complete infrastructure implementation plans. Kentucky and Tennessee were not included in the final rule (78 Fed. Reg. 2,882; 10 DEN A-2, 1/15/13).

Court Said EPA Must Act

EPA said Kentucky withdrew its implementation plan submittal and replaced it with a new plan, and Tennessee withdrew part of its submittal. EPA said it does not have the authority to approve or disapprove a withdrawn plan and it asked the district court to remove its obligation for acting on the Kentucky and Tennessee plans.

In the Dec. 7, 2012, order, the district court said Kentucky and Tennessee in fact revised or supplemented their submittals and their actions did not restart EPA's deadline for acting on the submittals. The court briefly extended EPA's deadline to act on the Kentucky and Tennessee plans to March 4 from Jan. 4.

The March 4 deadline now looms.

EPA Jan. 17 issued a proposed rule to partially approve and partially disapprove Kentucky's submittal, and com... are due Feb. 7 (78 Fed. Reg. 3,867).

The agency has not issued a proposal indicating how it intends to act on Tennessee's plan.

If EPA misses the March 4 deadline, the agency risks being held in contempt of court, Robert Ukeiley, an attorney representing the Sierra Club and Midwest Environmental Defense Center, plaintiffs in the original case, told BNN Feb. 6.

EPA did not respond to a request for comment Feb. 6 on whether it will be able to meet the March 4 deadline.

There have not been any blogs from Gina on fuel economy during my tenure here. I did a search on "McCarthy" on our blog site and didn't find anything about fuel economy.

Fuel economy.gov has a "feedback" link at the very bottom of the page, but it goes to a DOE email-fueleconomy@ornl.gov

Could we ask them to tweet @EPAgov (the general EPA twitter account), or at the Administrator?

Thx. Fyi. NRDC called me today w/ the same ask. They are part of the campaign.

I guess they really want to give us some wind at our back to get the rule across the finish line!

I told them you are already quarterbacking the request.

I do like your idea of that email box (if we end up with a more conventional approach).

I am not personally aware of an existing agency hashtag on this topic....

Hi Justin,

I've already discussed this phone number request from Sierra Club with Millet and Andrea. I suggested they opt for something other than a phone number for their web ad that should run next week since -- as the Brave Sir Millett said, "that was sooo 90s". Here are some alternatives:

1. Do we have a Twitter hashtag already used for anything related to the Fuel Economy GHG standard?

2. Did Gina/Janet/Margo have a blog post on this topic?

If they want to encourage their members to thank us in writing, I suggested they can use the PublicEngagement@epa.gov address. We can cull the "thanks" together and put in a document for Gina and yous guys, if needed. I also suggested they "like" LPJ and EPA on Facebook.

Let me know about the options above so I can get back to Ann Mesnikoff (ann.mesnikoff@sierraclub.org) -- have you worked with her in the past?

Thanks,

Did you hear back from your staff on the preferred number that our web ad can point folks to? Our online folks pointed me to this number (202-564-4700), which they found here - http://blog.epa.gov/administrator/contact-us/ I wanted to confirm that this line would able to handle a larger volume of messages.

Thanks,

So the numbers are right but I don't think that is what this reporter wants.

The numbers ALA used are from here:

I looked through it and cut/pasted the appropriate language:
Nationally, annual PM$_{2.5}$ concentrations were 24 percent lower in 2010 compared to 2001.
24-hour PM$_{2.5}$ concentrations were 28 percent lower in 2010 compared to 2001. Ozone levels did not improve in much of the East until 2002, after which there was a significant decline.
8-hour ozone concentrations were 13 percent lower in 2010 than in 2001.....
I'm away from a computer, on Blackberry.

Checking if Alison's still in the office to confirm or check #s.

In its annual State of the Air 2012 report, the organization said that between 2001 and 2010, ozone levels dropped 13%, year-round particle pollution declined 24% and short-term particle pollution 28% thanks to the Clean Air Act.

Amendments to the Clean Air Act in 1990, which included the promotion of the use of natural gas and low sulfur fuel, have resulted in 23,000 fewer premature deaths in 2010, averted 1.7 million asthma attacks and prevented 4.1 million lost work days, according to The Environmental Protection Agency.

For Immediate Release
May 21, 2010

President Obama Directs Administration to Create First-Ever National Efficiency and Emissions Standards for Medium- and Heavy-Duty Trucks

Calls for increased support for electric vehicles, extension of national policy for cars and light-trucks

WASHINGTON, DC - President Obama today continued to build towards a new clean energy foundation, announcing a vision for cleaner, more efficient trucks, and next-generation cars, including advanced electric vehicles.

Signing a Presidential Memorandum in the Rose Garden at the White House today, the President directed the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) to create a first-ever National Policy to increase fuel efficiency and decrease greenhouse gas pollution from medium- and heavy-duty trucks for Model Years 2014-2018. Currently trucks consume more than two million barrels of oil every day, and average 6.1 miles per gallon. They also emit 20% of greenhouse gas pollution related to transportation. Preliminary estimates indicate great potential for significant fuel efficiency gains and greenhouse gas emissions reductions for large tractor trailers, which represent half of all GHG emissions from this sector.

The President also called for an extension of the National Program for cars and light-duty trucks to Model Year 2017 and beyond.

Additionally, President Obama directed the Department of Energy to provide increased support for deployment of advanced vehicles, including electric vehicles, and directed EPA to reduce non-greenhouse-gas pollutants from motor vehicles.
The announcement lays the groundwork for a more secure energy future by reducing our dependence on oil, enhancing American competitiveness and job creation with a new generation of advanced electric vehicles, and protects the environment by reducing dangerous greenhouse gas and other pollutants.

President Obama said, “This will bring down costs for transporting goods, serving businesses and consumers alike. It will reduce pollution. And, just like the rule concerning cars, this standard will spur growth in the clean energy sector. We know how important that is. We know that our dependence on foreign oil endangers our security and our economy. We know that climate change poses a threat to our way of life – in fact we are already beginning to see its profound and costly impact. And we know that our economic future depends on our leadership in the industries of the future.”

Following the President’s directive today, and with the support of a wide and diverse array of stakeholders, including auto manufacturers, workers, the State of California, the environmental community, and other states, EPA and DOT will develop forthcoming rulemaking proposals to achieve these goals, and continue building a stronger foundation for a clean energy economy and the next generation of advanced vehicles.

"We want America to be home to the auto industry of the future, and this sends a clear message to our innovators, entrepreneurs and auto manufacturers that this country is committed to leading the way through 2016 and beyond,” said EPA Administrator Lisa P. Jackson. "The fuel efficient cars and trucks of the future can cut costs for American drivers and shipping companies, while cleaning up the air we breathe. We're starting on this today so that we can be the world leaders in clean technology tomorrow."

“We need to seize the momentum following last month’s historic new fuel economy and greenhouse gas emission standards and President Obama’s announcement today does just that,” said DOT Secretary Ray LaHood. “By expanding this effort to include medium and heavy-duty trucks and encouraging the development of innovative technologies such as electric cars, we are laying the foundation for a cleaner, greener transportation sector that provides greater environmental benefits, reduces our dependence on oil and encourages American creativity.”

Today’s announcement builds upon the success of the historic new national policy President Obama set in motion one year ago, this week, increasing fuel economy and reducing greenhouse gas pollution for new cars and light-duty trucks manufactured in Model Years 2012-2016 and sold in the United States. The policy represented an unprecedented collaboration between DOT, EPA, the world’s largest auto manufacturers, the United Auto Workers, leaders in the environmental community, the State of California, and other state governments. Last month, EPA and DOT issued coordinated final rules fulfilling the President’s directive, and these regulations established, for the first time, a harmonized National Program that will save our nation 1.8 billion barrels of oil and reduce greenhouse gas emissions by nearly one billion metric tons -- equivalent to taking 50 million cars off the road -- over the lifetime of vehicles sold in Model Years 2012-2016.

Hi ladies,
Paul Billings attended the Rose Garden statement from the President on the new actions on medium & heavy duty trucks. But we haven’t seen anything in print on this. Do you have a statement or more information coming out? I don’t find anything on either the White House’s, EPA’s, DOT’s websites.

Thanks!

Dear Amy, Wendy, Patricia, and Rochelle:

Please let us know how soon it would be possible to schedule the three meetings requested below, and to address the upcoming court deadlines, as noted:

1. Before responding to EPA's last offer, we'd like to request a meeting as soon as possible with Gina McCarthy and our client (Jane Williams and Marti Sinclair of Sierra Club).

2. Before the required meet & confer phone call tomorrow with the Industry Intervenors, we propose a phone call with EPA and DOJ only, as soon as possible, to discuss the meet & confer deadline and the upcoming joint case management statement deadline.

3. We are also available to meet and confer by telephone with EPA, DOJ and the Industry Intervenors at your convenience.

4. For tomorrow’s deadline referenced by Rochelle’s email yesterday, would EPA be willing to join a motion for relief from the ADR process? There remains significant potential to settle the case in full or in part in the near future and our discussions would not benefit from adding third parties into this process.

Thank you for your efforts and please share our thanks with Ms. McCabe and program staff, as we continue to attempt to resolve this matter.

Due to snow, if you are unable to reach Jim or me quickly by office phone or email, my cell phone number is (202) 664-3652 and Jim's cell is (202) 744-4516.

Best,
Emma

Joe,

Below is Emma Cheuse's email (Sierra Club counsel) transmitting the notice of intent (NOI) to sue regarding our failure to conduct a residual risk and technology review of the refineries rules. In her email, she asks that Sierra Club and Environmental Integrity Project (EIP) have an opportunity to speak with EPA about the NOI.

Wendy

Hi Amy and Wendy,

Jim and I just wanted to send you a courtesy copy of the new notice letter we sent today via certified mail on EPA’s Refineries RTR. Please see attached.

We and our co-counsel (Environmental Integrity Project) would welcome the opportunity to talk with EPA soon about this.

Best,
Emma

Forwarding email to Hon. Lisa Jackson:

Dear Administrator Jackson:

The attached letter, from 9 national trade associations and business organizations, should have been hand-delivered

(remaining text is redacted)
It concerns an August 20, 2010 letter you received from Sierra Club, NRDC, and Environmental Defense Fund, greenhouse gas emissions from boilers.

A copy was being delivered to Assistant Administrator McCarthy as well.

Thank you for your attention,

Russell Frye

EPA Administrator Lisa Jackson says the agency will eventually be forced by ongoing litigation to extend greenhouse gas (GHG) limits to most large industry sectors' new source performance standards (NSPS), but does not have immediate plans to impose such requirements beyond forthcoming NSPS rules for power plants and refiners. "The likelihood is high that . . . we will have to come out with a schedule at some point to regulate [additional sectors], but we believe that we don't need to do that in the immediate future," Jackson told a House Energy & Commerce Committee hearing March 11.

EPA is beginning with power plant and refinery NSPS rules -- under a settlement reached with states and environmental groups last year and finalized this month -- because those are the two largest stationary-source emission sectors, Jackson said. But she noted that litigation has already been filed to force the agency to craft GHG performance standards for other sectors, and predicted those efforts would eventually be successful. "We actually face lawsuits to promulgate for other sectors. I'm aware of one for several manufacturing sectors," she said. But "when you look at [GHG] emissions, they're largest from the power sector and refineries, so rather than start with the small sources, we decided to start with those."

Jackson did point to EPA's existing new source review requirements imposing GHG limits in pre-construction permits for a variety of industries. Speaking to reporters after the hearing, Jackson said that in cases where EPA is sued, the agency looks at "litigation risk" and where regulation makes the most immediate sense when deciding whether to settle litigation forcing it to act. She said additional NSPS rules would not be contemplated until the power plant and refinery rules are in place. "We thought that we were trying to bring some rationality to the system. We still have litigation outstanding for other sources," she said. "My intent is to not do regulation for the other sources until we deal with the largest ones first. We will have to go back to them at some point."

Other sectors that could be subject to new NSPS requirements for GHGs include Portland cement plants and concentrated animal feeding operations. The Sierra Club sued EPA in November seeking GHG limits in the just-completed NSPS for the Portland cement sector, while the Humane Society and other organizations in 2009 petitioned the agency to issue NSPS that would limit GHGs at large farms, according to a database of climate litigation maintained by Columbia Law School. Environmentalists have also sued EPA to require GHG limits in performance standards for municipal landfills and nitric acid plants -- though those measures target GHG emissions other than carbon dioxide.

there are two issues that concern me with this request: (1) call my cell if you want to discuss.

Janet-

On December 7, a notice of proposed consent decree was published in the Federal Register, including a schedule for the proposal and promulgation of the MACT for Brick and Structural Clay. Since that time, I have been trying to inform the industry (including, as you know, a large number of small businesses) and have received significant concern in response. Included in their concerns was the short time frame for responding to this notification, with the majority of the time being during traditional vacations and shutdowns at the end of the year.

I am writing this to you because I have been unable to get in touch with Scott Jordan in EPA’s Office of General Counsel, the person listed as the contact “For More Information.” His voicemail message says that he will not return to the office until January 7, which clearly is too late.

Our industry is very concerned that EPA is about to agree to a schedule that is too short to fully consider options (such as the health-based approach EPA discussed with us at our last meeting) and we are trying to respond to this proposed consent decree; however, we would like an additional week to provide these comments. In Scott’s absence, several persons have received a copy of this email. This is so the correct person will be alerted to about this critical matter and able to make a quick reply.

Thank you for your time.

Martin, Bill, and Graham,
Attached is a technical report authored by Ron Sahu, using modeling data from Andy Gray. The report lays out the basis for the regional haze determination, the base case, the FIP case, and then modeling results for four scenarios (table on page 8). In the table on page 8, you will see that the scenarios cover a range of retirement options (2 or 3 boilers), SO2 numbers (.15 or .1) but retain the PNM NOx rate of .23. The final column on the right of the table shows the deciview results for a boilers 2 and 3 retirement/SNCR on 1 and 4 outcome--it doesn't meet the FIP much less do better than the FIP.

Please let me know if you have any questions or need clarification on any part of the report.

We continue to look at other possible scenarios and look forward to further conversations with you regarding a resolution of the matter. I wish you and your families a peaceful, restful, and happy holiday season.

Bill

Gina, Janet:

Attached is the draft permit that TCEQ prepared for the IGCC plant with CCS that Al discussed with you today.

The document below includes
- notice information, pdf pages 1-4,
- the draft permit, pdf pp. 5-36
- summary of the TCEQ's technical review called a "preliminary determination summary" is at the back, pp.37-50.

Joe,

I can't do 3pm today as we have a briefing with Janet while she is down here in RTP on the Sierra Club suit on ozone and PM modeling for PSD. I can work time tomorrow or perhaps other times today. With Gina and Janet down here today., my calendar is pretty full today.
Thanks for this. I think it would make sense to do a quick call about this tomorrow or Wednesday. 3:00 might work tomorrow. Thanks, again.
